Long SYNOPSIS

Robin invites his group of university friends to join him in Neom, Saudi Arabia. After enjoying a fish lunch and surfing, he takes them to a hedonistic party on a stunning beach. As the party winds down, Robin drives them to a remote part of the coast to jump off a famous cliff. However, Vicky shatters her knee when she jumps, snapping everyone out of their hangovers. Desperate for shelter and help, the group is carried by the currents to a small island. They help Vicky to a cave and manage to stem the bleeding.

With no way to climb back up the sheer, eroded cliff and their phones out of reach, the group finds themselves battling impending hypothermia, infection, and blood loss. Robin and Tyler swim back to the mainland to seek help, leaving the remaining friends with only the cave for shelter. Anissa, trained as a doctor, does her best to help the injured.

Haunting noises and ghostly visions soon terrify the friends as they sense a sinister presence lurking nearby. Tyler returns to find Bella, who has discovered a body in the woods. The mysterious spirit begins preying on them, picking them off one by one. As the group desperately tries to survive the night, members meet their demise at the hands of the shapeshifting spirit, who will stop at nothing until all its victims are dead. Tyler is the first victim, followed by Vicky and Bella.

Anissa and Rizal see a light in the island's out-of-use lighthouse. Their nightmare is about to get much worse as they confront the vengeful spirit of Theobald Mayhew, a notorious 17th-century smuggler. The brutalization he suffered fuels his relentless quest for revenge. He has power over his distant nephew, Robin, who has lured his friends to the island to facilitate his uncle's vengeance.

Long SYNOPSIS

Rizal and Anissa head to the lighthouse as its light begins to shine. The door is open. Inside, they find a room full of old shipping logs, gunpowder, swords, and treasures, resembling a movie set. Robin is waiting for them and quickly knocks them out. When they regain consciousness, they are tied up on old chairs. Robin, brandishing a sword, reveals his true intentions, filled with pain and murder. He is joined by the spirit of his uncle, Theobald Mayhew. Robin stabs Rizal, who manages to cut himself free, and they fight viciously.

Both bleeding profusely, they end up in the lantern room. Anissa and Rizal manage to push Robin out of the window, sending him plummeting to his death. Anissa and Rizal then confront Theobald one final time, working together to defeat him. They narrowly escape by jumping out of the lighthouse as it is engulfed in flames, the lantern room consumed by the inferno.

JUMP OUT is a SUPERNATURAL THRILLER/HORROR, a cinematic roller coaster ride that guarantees to keep audiences on the edge of their seats until the end.

Robin

Robin serves as a mentor at Oxford University. He frequently forms close bonds with his younger Master's graduates. In an effort to celebrate the end of their studies, he takes them to the desert in Saudi Arabia, where his character's depth is revealed. Underneath his scholarly exterior lies a man tormented by the spirit of his evil distant ancestor, who seeks revenge through him. This supernatural influence forces Robin into a tragic conflict, compelling him to lure his friends to their potential demise despite his own moral objections.

Deeply in love with one of his graduates and his genuine care for his students are in direct opposition to the malevolent demands of his ancestor's spirit. This duality creates a character torn between his loyalty and love for his friends and the sinister force driving his actions.
